Mid-Century Marvels: Bauhaus and Beyond

A Celebration of Architecture and Design to Benefit Lexington Historical Society

2019 marks the centennial of the Staatliches Bauhaus art school in Germany. The Bauhaus (literally "building house"), founded in 1919 by Walter Gropius, lasted for only 14 years; its principles of functionality, simplicity, and innovation, however, live on in architecture, furniture, and interior design. In celebration of its centennial, we offer behind-the-scenes, personal visits to homes that reflect the functional elegance initiated by Bauhaus visionaries.

The Events

Bauhaus and Beyond: An Interpretive Tour of the Walter Gropius House, Lincoln

The finest embodiment of Walter Gropius' philosophy stands on a hill in Lincoln and looks much as it did - inside and out - when the architect and his family moved in back in 1938. Join Peter Gittleman of Historic New England, a friend of the Gropius family, for an intimate and personal visit. Enjoy wine, refreshments, and period music as you marvel at the modernist marriage of form and function in architecture, materials, and furnishings.

Functional Elegance: A Personal View of the George and Christina Gamota Private Collection

Over the last five decades, collectors Christina and George Gamota's homes have been splashed across the pages of Glamour, Ladies' Home Journal, and Boston magazines. With style and panache, they have integrated global treasures into their modern home, collecting everything from high-end modern furniture, paintings, and sculpture by Marcel Breuer, Harry Bertoina, and Charles and Ray Eames, to flea-market finds. Once strictly a modernist, Christina now believes life is too short to live amid just one period, and the eclectic result is a joyful interplay of styles. Join Christina to view the entire home as she discusses her decorating aesthetic. You will also be treated to champagne and her specially-prepared European dessert buffet honoring modern design icons. This is a treat for the senses not to be missed!

Function and Family: A Mid-Century Modern Cocktail Party in a Walter Pierce Home

Lexington's Peacock Farm was conceived in 1952 by architects Walter Pierce and Danforth Compton. Pierce lived in the neighborhood until his death in 2013, during which time he refined his modernist principles. This 1963 family home in Shaker Glen is one of the 100 homes he designed and retains most of its original character-defining features, while remaining casual, comfortable, and inviting. Join the owners and your friends for a Mid-Century Modern-inspired cocktail party, with music and refreshments of the period, and a silent auction of accessories. 'Mod' clothing is also encouraged!
