

Statement on COVID-19 from Erica McAvoy, Executive Director

Lexington Historical Society is following recommendations from the Center for Disease Control and Lexington Office of Public Health. As of March 10, 2020, Lexington Public Schools remain open. The town has two presumptive positive cases of the virus. Please read the Lexington Office of Public Health's full statement here.

Our offices and our museum, Buckman Tavern, will remain open unless further action is determined necessary. We will update our website and social media regarding upcoming events and will evaluate whether to hold or postpone them on a case-by-case basis. We will continue to monitor recommendations from the CDC and the Lexington Office of Public Health. Please check our events page for up-to-date information.
